

New York, Dec. 19.—The Herald says that the result of a poll of members of the new house of representatives in Congress is that 77 of the 228 Democrats elected will demand a tariff for revenue and thirty want the protection retained but the schedule lowered. The first refusal to be quoted. Sixty republican stand-patters do not want any changes. Seventy-nine want downward revision with protection retained and 43 refuse to go on record.

'THE HOLY NIGHT' A XMAS CANTATA BY CHURCH CHOIR

Rendered at Second Presbyterian Church Sunday
Direction Miss Florence
Kinn.

Unquestionably the best presentation of the musical service ever attempted in Newark, was the Christmas cantata, "The Holy Night," which was most successfully rendered at the Second Presbyterian Church Sunday afternoon by the church choir of the church, augmented by other voices, and after musical practice for several days, sang as one heart and soul.

The choir consisted of Miss W. Miller, soprano; Miss Minnie Brown, alto; Miss J. W. Miller, tenor; and Miss J. W. Miller, bass. These four assisted were followed by the church choir, which sang the cantata in a most beautiful manner. The cantata was composed by the church choir, and was rendered in a most beautiful manner. The cantata is a beautiful and solemn work, and was rendered in a most beautiful manner. The cantata was composed by the church choir, and was rendered in a most beautiful manner. The cantata was composed by the church choir, and was rendered in a most beautiful manner.

"The Holy Night" is a work which abounds in fugue passages, the most difficult of rendition by a choir of mixed voices, of any kind of musical composition. Some of these were in a minor key, and the magnificent harmony was extremely close, yet the setting never wavered, and carried through the various modulations in a manner which was thoroughly appreciated by the audience, and greatly enjoyed by even the uninitiated in the audience.

The soloists, who were under the strain of long practice, and physical difficulties resultant from colds, arose most consistently to the occasion and gave a most highly creditable performance.

BARROW NAMED, POWERS FIGHTING

Ed Barrow.

The election Monday of Ed Barrow to be president of the Eastern League started a fight. President Pat Powers and his allies among the magnates absented themselves from the meeting in which five magnates elected Barrow. They announced they would contest the legality of the election, but later Powers, realizing the majority of the eight clubs opposed him, called a regular meeting and withdrew from the race.

MONODIET

about which we hear so much, does not mean living on one food exclusively, but on foods that harmonize.

Certain elements of nutrition are essential to health, but all these elements cannot be obtained from any one food—hence the necessity of a variety.

Deficiency of one or more of these elements, such as iron, for instance, in the blood, will cause anemia, run-down condition and sleeplessness.

If you are one of the unfortunate who have drifted into this state, change your diet, eat foods that are rich in the mineral elements of nutrition, and take Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, which contains no oil and supplies iron to the blood in the most easily assimilated form.

Vinol creates an appetite, aids digestion, makes pure, healthy blood. In this natural manner it builds up the run-down, weak and debilitated. If you don't find this to be a fact we will return your money if you will try a bottle. F. D. Hall, druggist.

Parsnip Salad. Scrape three medium sized parsnips and cut into thin slices. Cover with boiling water and simmer for fifteen minutes; drain and dry. Dredge each slice with flour and fry golden brown in a little butter; drain on paper and set aside until cold. Arrange in a heap in the center of a dish, press some finely chopped boiled ham into little balls and arrange them round the parsnips, alternating them with hard boiled eggs cut in half. Garnish with cress and serve.

Remoulade Sauce. Put the yolks of three hard boiled eggs in a bowl and mash or pound very smooth. Add to them a pinch of dry mustard, salt and cayenne to taste, and one teaspoonful of lemon juice. Work in very gradually three tablespoonsful of olive oil, then the yolk of a raw egg, being careful to stir only in one direction to prevent curdling. Now add gradually two teaspoonfuls of the vinegar and serve at once.

Excellent Program at Memorial Hall

The regular monthly Sunday meeting of Lament Post, No. 71, G. A. R., held in the hall in the Memorial building Sunday afternoon, was excellently attended and a most beneficial program was rendered, consisting of addresses, readings, recitations and songs.

The program, which appeared in Sunday's issue of the Advocate, included addresses by Chairman of the Post, D. B. Barn, and A. S. Mitchell. The speakers were cordially received. An interesting feature of the afternoon was "Reminiscences of the War" by Mr. Matt Bausch and three of the other comrades of the post.

TAILORED COAT FOR A GIRL.

The "tea frock," as it is called, because these pretty little frocks of thin worsted, of velvet or of permo fabric—a silky weave of wool and mohair—are worn in the afternoon for matinees and tea at the restaurant afterward, is usually covered in the street by a long coat.

Sometimes the coat is of fur, but this winter tweed and homespun coats trimmed with braid, or made up in plain tailored style, have been much worn by the younger girls.

Red Tape and Matrimony.

Some of the reasons why a Frenchman may not marry are given by a correspondent of a Paris newspaper. He has been trying to get married for three years and has not yet succeeded. French marriage law is a tricky thing to deal with. If the prospective bridegroom has not lived more than six months at his address at the time of the marriage he must get a certificate signed by the landlord and concierge of every house where he has lived previously till he gets back to one where he did live for six months. Birth certificates are required and the written consent of parents.

As no paper must bear a date more than two months old, it often happens that the marriage must be postponed to get the papers renewed. The man who had been failed for three years once succeeded in making all his papers correct, when he was called up for his periodical term of military service, and this threw his papers out of date.

Another time he arrived before the mayor with his bride, but the ceremony was not performed, as a certificate of his first wife's death was not forthcoming.

LOOSENS TIGHT COUGHS.

Home-Made Cough Syrup.

Here is the cheapest and most powerfully effective cough cure known to medical science. Buy of your druggist (or have his order filled from the wholesale) two and one-half ounces of essence menthol-lavine. In the package is full directions for making a splendid laxative, emulsive cough syrup. This amount makes a full pint at a saving of from $2 to $3 as compared with ordinary labeled cough syrups, and it is really better to cure because it aids the system of the cold and cough by its laxative action.

It is so simple to make, just buy the menthol-lavine, and make a syrup according to directions accompanying. This is the formula:

Essence menthol-lavine 2 1/2 Ozs.
Granulated sugar 12 1/2 Ozs.
Syrup 12 1/2 Ozs.

Directions: Put box to prepare the syrup at home. It is certainly a blessing for old people and loosens the tightest cough in an hour, while children like to take it, and it prevents pneumonia fever and other complications by its tonic and laxative action. Use for any throat or chest trouble, and you can actually feel it working and penetrating the tissues of throat and lungs with its curative properties.

HEART and HOME TALKS by Barbara Boyd

Pleasant Games for Christmas Gayeties.

If you are planning a Christmas party and want some diversion tucked up your sleeve, as it were, to spring on the crowd if things show any inclination to get dull, here are some suggestions that may prove helpful.

Take pieces of cardboard or heavy paper and paste on each a picture cut from the newspapers or magazines. The pictures chosen should be Christmasy in character, though, of course, one can take any kind of picture desired. If the pictures are well chosen they in themselves cause a lot of fun. On each card write a letter of the alphabet with which some object in the picture begins, as for instance, if there is holly anywhere in the picture, the letter H could be written on the card. Of course, nothing so easy as this should be taken. Some rather obscure object in the picture should be chosen to indicate by the letter, or the game will be too easy.

The number of cards to be made depends upon the number of guests. If there is a large crowd, one can reduce the number of cards by having several objects in the picture beginning with the same letter, in which case it is well to indicate alongside the letter how many objects are to be found, as for instance, C5.

Place the cards face downward upon a table, with the players ranged around it. The one who starts the game turns up the top card and is given one minute to name the object beginning with the letter on the card. If he can't do it, he passes the card to the next. The one who names it correctly keeps the card and the next card from the pack is taken. The one having the most cards at the end of the game wins. If several objects in a card are to be named, counters can be given the successful guessers to help keep their score right, as only one can retain the card.

Jolly Journeys is another pleasant game. The hostess tells the guest to what place he is going, but the guest must tell what he is going to do there, and every noun, adjective and verb in his reply must begin with the same letter as the place. A few minutes are given him to answer. For instance, the hostess will say, "You are to go to Paris. What are you going to do there?" The guest will reply, "I am going to Paris to Plump my Prentiss." To the next, the hostess may say, "You are to go to Damascus. What are you going to do there?" To which the reply may be, "I am going to Damascus to Dine on Delicious Doughnuts." A prize is given for the best answer to be decided by vote.

In Compliments, each person in turn wishes to be somebody or some animal. Having stated what he wants to be, he turns to the person on his right and says, "Why do I wish to be So-and-So?" This person must return an uncomplimentary answer. Then the player turns to the one on his left and again asks, "Why," etc., and here he must receive a complimentary answer. For instance, if he wishes to be Napoleon and asks the one on his right "Why," the reply may be, "Because you like to be boss." The left-hand neighbor may say, "Because you have great executive ability."

An Interview

In Which a Love Affair For His Girl

By VERNON ARNOLD

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"What's this? It engaged! What rascal has been buzzing around her without my knowing anything about it? Why, she's nothing but a child. I'll take her off to Europe, bury her—anything to get her away from the puppy."

These words were spoken by Mr. Charles Manning on receiving a letter from his daughter, aged twenty, who was away on a visit, stating that she had become engaged to one of the—no, not one of the finest, but the finest fellow in the world. He was abundantly able to support a wife in good style. Every one spoke well of him. Indeed, she had been informed that she had got a treasure. The letter also announced that the young man had gone to the city to "speak" to her father and would call upon him that evening at their home in the suburbs for the purpose. Mr. Manning got into the 5:10 afternoon train to go home, being the only one of the family occupying the house at the time. He pulled an evening paper from his pocket and tried to read, but his thoughts were upon the prospective loss of his daughter, whom he adored. A young man sat down on the vacant seat beside him.

"Fine day, sir," remarked the young man.

"Yes, very," replied Mr. Manning shortly.

"You don't remember me, Mr. Manning. I once met you at the Averbys."

"Now, Mr. Manning when he was himself was a very genial man. He was getting to that age when he didn't remember people and names as well as he had, and it troubled him. He looked up at the young man and said:

"Yes, I do, perfectly. How do you do? I haven't met you for some time."

"How are Mrs. Manning and Miss Katherine?"

"Very well, very well indeed. They are away just now, and I am alone in that deuced big house."

"I expect to be alone myself this evening. I wish you would help me through it by dining with me."

"Oh, no! I couldn't do that. I have an engagement. But you might dine with me. I shall not have to spend more than half an hour with the other one."

"You're very kind. I'll dine with you with pleasure."

Dreading the interview in which he was expected to give away his own dear little Kilt, whom he had loved, honored and obeyed since childhood, Mr. Manning was pleased that he would have an excuse to cut the interview short. Before reaching their station he had told of his daughter's engagement—he couldn't keep from speaking of a subject that absorbed him—and informed his unknown acquaintance that he had no doubt the man she was to marry would prove especially displeasing to him.

At dinner the young man was sympathetic and said he didn't really see how a father could bear to part with his child, especially so lovely a girl as Katherine. This touched the old man's heart, and it went right straight out to the young one. A bottle of wine at dinner cheered the father a bit, and he felt so much better for it that he told the butler to bring another. The young man—Mr. Manning tried indirectly to find out his name, but failed—did everything in his power to cheer his host, avowing that if any man asked for his daughter he would kick him out of the house.

By the time the second bottle had been finished the old gentleman had become quite mellow. Suddenly he looked at the clock. "Half past 9," he exclaimed, "and the chump hasn't turned up yet! I only hope he's been killed on the way!"

"But think how hard that would be on Miss Kittle."

An hour passed, and the expected party had not arrived.

"William," called Mr. Manning, "look the front door and if any one calls say I've gone to bed."

"That's a capital plan," suggested the guest. "If you could keep him out long enough you might get rid of him forever. Now that he can't get in tonight to interrupt me, I'll tell you a secret. I've long loved your daughter myself."

"You don't mean it?"

"I do, and that she should marry any one else would kill me. That's the reason I sympathize so heartily with you."

"I wish I'd known it! I might have helped you along."

"As to the man she is to marry, I assure you he's unworthy of her."

"Are you sure of it?"

"Perfectly."

"Oh, good gracious, what shall I do?"

"Help me to beat him. It's long been a tie between us."

"How?"

"Give me a letter to her stating that if she must marry any one you will only consent that she marry me. She thinks more of you than any lover and you can easily turn the scale."

"By Jove, I'll do it!"

Half an hour later the young man left with a letter to Miss Manning from her father stating that the bearer would be his choice for her husband. In due time a reply came:

"Dear Papa—I'm so glad you are pleased with Archie. He's the one I met when we were both young and dined with you."

"KIP."

"By the way," exclaimed the old gentleman, "How he did play it on me!"

AMUSEMENTS

SATURDAY'S SHOW.

In "The Man of the Hour" George Broadhurst wrote a play that appeals to the masses because it tells of something they can understand and in its moral they see much. It is a play that will live for many years and in spite of the fact that Saturday was the fourth time it has been presented in Newark the audience was very much pleased with it. In the other times "The Man of the Hour" was seen here practically the same company was seen each time and we learned to know the characters as they knew them, but on Saturday several new conceptions of the old roles were noted. L. C. Phillips was not near so much of a blustering boss in Horgan as former interpreters, but was quite as pleasing in his idea. Joseph Harris played the part of "the man" very well but was suffering with a severe hoarseness.

The women of the company carried their roles very well and Miss Zella Davenport made a pleasing Dallas Wainwright.

HYDE'S THEATRE PARTY.

Hyde's Theatre Party at the Auditorium theatre all this week.

There is a wide difference between the performance of Hyde's Theatre Party and the ordinary stock or repertoire company. The plays of the former are carefully selected and are all royalty plays. Careful attention is paid to every detail in their staging and a car-load of scenery and effects is carried by the company for the purpose of making complete productions. Last, but not least, the members of the company are selected with an eye to their fitness. It is safe to say that no better acting company was ever gathered under one management to play at popular prices. At least this was the verdict in all the cities visited last season and this year the company is stronger than ever. Their opening bill at the Auditorium will be "The Man of the Hour," a society drama by Nelson Compton. Ladies tickets 10c, 25c, 50c, 75c, 1.00.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

The Boy Lawyer And the Woodchuck

"THE boy lawyer in this story," said daddy, after he had told the name of the story to Eekie and Jack, "was Daniel Webster, one of the greatest statesmen and lawyers this country ever had. This story of his boyhood days is true and it is sometimes called 'Daddy Webster's First Case.'"

"When Webster was a boy he lived on a farm in New Hampshire. He had a brother named Ezekiel. The father of the boys was a farmer, but he was also a county judge, and he hoped that Daniel would become a lawyer."

"One summer a woodchuck made his home in a hillside near the Webster's barn. Like all of his kind, he was fond of green growing things, and he ate some cabbage leaves and other produce which belonged to Mr. Webster. One morning little Mr. Woodchuck was found in a trap which had been set for him."

"He won't do any more mischief around here," said Ezekiel. "Let us kill him now."

"But the little animal looked most distressed in such a pitiable way that the lad felt sorry for him. No, he said, let us take pity on the woe for a while, where he can't find his way back to do any more mischief, and turn him loose."

"Ezekiel would not agree to this, and the boys argued about it until their father heard the quarrel. After hearing both sides he said:

"Let me judge the woodchuck's case. You, Ezekiel, shall tell all the bad deeds he has been guilty of, and Daniel shall defend him. I shall be the judge."

"Ezekiel began by telling all the harm the woodchuck had done. He was a mischievous, destructive animal, he said, and his skin could be sold for 10 cents, which would help to pay for the damage. The boy argued well against the animal, for what he said was true."

"When Daniel began to speak about like this:

"God made the woodchuck. He made him to live in the bright sunlight and the pure air. He has a right to his life, for God gave it to him. And as for the little food he has stolen from us, we have plenty and can spare it."

"The woodchuck is not a fierce animal which takes away life from other creatures. Look at his poor, soft eyes, begging us not to do him harm. See how he trembles. He almost seems to understand that we are thinking of harming him. He cannot speak for himself. Shall we be so hard hearted as to kill him because he has taken only the little food which he needed? I say, sir, we should set him free."

"So well did the boy speak that the judge's heart was torn. 'Ezekiel, Zeke,' he cried, 'set that woodchuck free.'"

Coroner Pfeiffer of Lima rendered a verdict of suicide in the case of Joseph Butler, the former Knox county man, whose wife was for a time held for his murder. The Butlers have relatives in this county and are well known in the northern part of the county.

Eight drunks were up before Mayor Ankus Monday morning. All but two of this number drew fines and most of them were committed. Fascination of the Third Rail.
"You can ask all you want about the way some people want to jump off tall buildings, but the men who walk the elevated tracks can sympathize with them," said a man the other day whose business it is to work along the elevated railroad lines and see that everything is in good condition.

"Trackwalkers often have the same impulse to step on the third rail that climbers have to jump. You walk along and see that shining rod of steel and watch the sunlight glister on it, and then the thought comes to you, 'If I step on that it will kill me,' and then you wonder how it would feel to just put your toe on it. Of course a fellow shakes those ideas off his mind, but they keep coming back, and I have known more than one man who has quit his job because he was afraid that he couldn't fight off much longer the impulse to stand on the track and put the other foot on the third rail, and when I hear of a trackwalker being killed by the third rail I wonder if the fascination of the third rail got the better of him."—New York Sun.

ISSUES WARNING ON XMAS FIRE DANGERS

State Fire Marshal Zuber is concerned in Christmas doings lest some of Santa Claus' fixings may be of such inflammable stuff that fires may be started that will turn Christmas joys into sorrow and loss. He has issued a bulletin on the subject, in which he suggests that asbestos be used for effects instead of cotton or other highly inflammable material.
Electric light instead of unprotected candles is recommended where it can be secured and the people are cautioned against cross wires in preparing such a tree.

"If Santa Claus is to appear," says
the marshal, "let him wear material that will not make him a human torch." Cotton, batting, tissue paper and celluloid are tabooed. "Place the gifts under the tree, not on it." Let there be no draught or air on the tree when lighted. Put out all the lights before distributing the gifts—specially if the gifts are on the tree. Never leave the tree unwatched when lighted. Have a sheet of zinc under the tree to catch the drippings from candles.
Have water handy to put out unexpected blazes."

The fire marshal also cautions against the use of colored tissue paper about the electric light bulbs, stating that the heat is sufficient to cause paper to burn if the lights are lighted for any length of time.

THE NEW SPORTING ANNUAL.
That greatest of standard authorities,
the "Police Gazette Sporting Annual,"
published by Richard K. Fox, Franklin Square, New York, has just been issued for 1911, and the many new records have increased its size but not its price. It contains records of baseball, bicycling, trotting, jumping, football, racing, aquatics, and all athletic sports, compiled by Sam C. Austin.

The main feature of the book, however, is the pugilistic records, and many pages are devoted to that popu-

is made doubly attractive by its high-class illustrations and photos of the champions. It is authentic and reliable, and stands today an authority on the subjects upon which it treats. The

Collides With A Teamster on the Hebron Canal Bridge

Hebron, Dec. 19.—Mr. Fred Howell, formerly of Newark, but who now resides with his father on their farm south of town, was unfortunate in colliding with a teamster, who was driv-

Howell's buggy was badly wrecked.
The collision happened on the canal bridge and parties from town ran and caught the horse, thus preventing what might have been a serious accident.

Mr. Howell was driving a beautiful spirited horse to a light buggy. No damage was done to the teamster.

has held the trophy for two years.
Should it succeed in winning it for

This Oil Company Was Good Investment

When the Otego Oil & Gas Co. pays $5,000 more in dividends, it will have disbursed a cool $100,000 to the lucky stockholders, who had nothing at all but confidence, when they invested their money in the oil company several years ago.

The 22nd dividend was paid last week, this amounting to $2,500. This dividend makes just $95,000 disbursed since the organization. For some time the company has not been drilling new wells because of the low price of oil, but at the annual meeting, which will be held January 3, plans for more wells will be discussed in their entirety.

GET RID OF RHEUMATISM

It's An Easy Matter With Rheuma,
the New Remedy That Evans'
Drug Store Guarantees.

Drive out the Uric Acid from the joints. Get every particle of this poisonous matter out of your system and keep it out.

You can do it with Rheuma, a new scientific prescription that acts at once on kidneys, stomach, liver and blood; dissolves the Uric Acid and causes Rheumatic agony to vanish.
"I am very thankful for Rheuma, which I began taking on January 3, when I could not hold a pen. Now I can write. Then I could not walk; now I go down town and back and feel like another man. I am free from pain for the first time in three years." E. W. Rice, Troy, Pa., Jan. 29, 1910.

LOPID MAKES A CHRISTMAS CALL

LOPID had written to him: "It will seem quite like old times to have you with us again at Christmas. It seems much longer than four years since you were here, but I am sure things will appear quite as usual to you. We make no change in our yearly program for Christmas. It is really the children's day, as it was when you and I first spent it together. I hesitated when I went to write how many years ago it must be eighteen. But I think father and mother—and I—take quite as much interest in it as grown people do in the circus—quite for the children's sake, of course.

"I would ask you to dinner immediately on your arrival Christmas eve, but if I dared to suggest the presence of an outsider there would be a hubbub among the powers that rule the household. I simply dare not say anything save that we should like to have you come at 9 precisely, so that we may have a little chat before the arrival of our other guests."

And indeed as he walked up the avenue with his long prairie stride Christmas eve he was depressed to find everything so little changed from the night four years since, when he had left New York for the west to make over his life in a new pattern of work and usefulness.

Here was the familiar door and the old bronze doorknob which had once been on a level with his eyes. And the old butler, whom the Stantons had had for twenty years, opened the door to him and answered his greeting with a respectful "Good evening, Mr. Burnside," giving him his Christian name as if he had called only the evening before. But the hall was hidden in a mass of evergreen and holly, and the electric bulbs glowed in their shades like huge berries in the greenery. And here he seemed suddenly a stranger, coming now on the old Christmas spirit to which his absence had made him an alien. It bewildered him; it saddened him.

He entered the front drawing room and saw the hem of a skirt disappear through the portieres which hung between that and the second drawing room behind it. Some one was placing a Christmas wreath in the middle window, a woman's figure. He did not know her. She turned to greet him with an eager, "Why, Burnside, I am so glad to see you!" and grasped his brown fingers with a warm clasp of a white hand.

She was not of that girlish fragility which he had remembered. She was the elder sister of her old self, but in the excitement and pleasure of seeing him her voice and manner were those of the girl whom he had loved—and lost—four years before. He smiled at her sadly. "How you have grown!" he said.

She arched her eyebrows at him. "And you?" she laughed. "Why, you're as broad and brown as a soldier. I shouldn't have known you. You have changed."

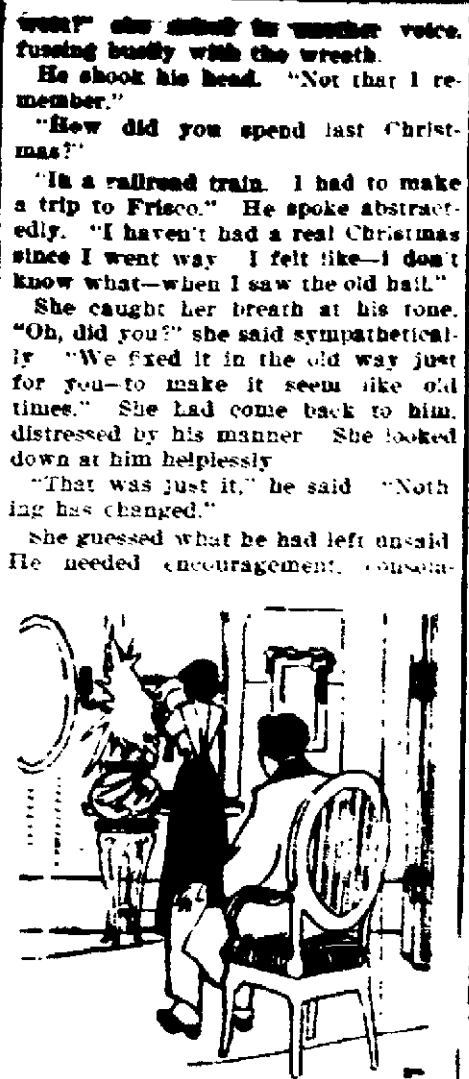

"Have I?" He caught at it eagerly. She saw the trouble in his eyes. "They'll all be delighted to see you looking so well!"—she avoided it—"so big and strong."

He saw the picture of himself which he carried in her memory of him, and he pained him. He had thought that his letters would have told her.

She held the wreath up to him. "I was pretending to hang it in the window," she confessed, "so that I should be the first to see you. And I didn't know you when you passed."

He smiled again, and they sat down together. "How are they all?"

"As well as ever," she said and began to tell him of them—how the children had been growing; how her mother was aging. "And father," she whispered, "is so deaf. You mustn't tion, the assurance that his life in the west had cleaned the blot from his escutcheon. She began to busy herself about the room, pinning sprigs of Christmas green on the hangings. "Do you remember how we used to decorate together?" she asked him.

"Do I?" he said. "Don't you let the servants do it yet?"

"No," she laughed. "It'd spoil the fun. I have to do it alone now."

"Oh, I beg your pardon," he apologized, coming over to her eagerly. "Can I help you?"

"Well," she said, "if you haven't forgotten how."

"Forgotten!" he exclaimed. "I remember the proper place for every berry."

"Get the holly, then," she ordered. "We'll have to hurry. They'll be in on us in a few minutes."

He brought the branches to her and they went to work together, putting twigs of it among the bric-a-brac and in the vases, drooping clusters over the tops of the pictures and twining them in the chandeliers and electric brackets. She saw him smile with something of his old boyishness and was encouraged.

They stood in the center of the room at last and looked around at their work. "I have one sprig left," he said. "Where can I put it?"

"There's not a corner left," she said, searching the walls with a most innocent eye. He could see none either.

"Why," she exclaimed, "there's the old place over the mantel."

He looked up at the carving. "I can't reach it without a ladder, even yet."

She measured his height with a glance. "Stand on the arm of a chair."

"With my weight?" he laughed. She studied the situation. "I'll do it if you'll steady—the chair."

He drew over a capulient chair of puffed upholstery, with an arm as broad as a cushioned window seat. She hopped into the ample seat of it with a show of dainty slippers and put her hand on his shoulder. "You will have to catch me if I fall," she smiled down on him.

He reached up and took her hand. "Be careful," he said and closed a firm grasp on her fingers, which were trembling despite herself.

She stepped up, swaying, on the arm; he held the chair with his knee and handed a sprig of holly to her. He had forgotten the four years that had passed.

She straightened up slowly. "Oh, I can't," she said and fell back to him again. "I'm afraid you can't hold me."

He came around to the other side of her. "Put your hand on my shoulder," he directed. It was the way they had done it before, and he longed for the old touch. When she stood up on the arm of the chair he put his arm about her and held her there. She reached the branch of holly into its place in the carving slowly and then covered her hand to his shoulder.

There were tears in his eyes. He took her fingers and put them to his lips. "Thanks," he said huskily.

She slipped down to him in a sudden wave of weakness. "Oh, Burnside," she whispered, "how—how you frightened me!"

She was such a little thing in his arms. The blood choked in his throat. "Have you forgiven me?" he asked quickly.

Her hand stole up, trembling to flutter a touch of pity on his brown cheek. "Forgive you?" she whispered. "I forgive you the day you went away and cried all night for you to come back."

He gazed into eyes that were swimming in tenderness. "God bless you," he said to them—"dearest!" to her lips.

The butler coughed in the hall. "The mistletoe has come, Miss Frances," he announced.

"Bring it in," she cried. "We'll have some on the chandelier."

"And a piece over the mantel," Burnside suggested slyly.

She looked at him with a sidelong glance. New York Commercial Advertiser

INTERESTING LECTURE HEARD AT GRANVILLE

Rev. Bowers Talks of Conditions of Heathens in India—College City News.

Granville, Dec. 19.—Those who attended the Baptist church Sunday evening had the pleasure of listening to one of the most interesting as well as instructive lectures on the conditions existing in the then lands, that has ever been heard in Granville. The Rev. A. C. Bowers, who has been a missionary in India for many years, has just returned to this country, having been granted a furlough and the privilege of visiting his home.

He opened his lecture by telling of the conditions in India, and the effect of the "darkness" of the land. He said that the people of India were in a state of "darkness" and that the only way to bring them out of it was by the preaching of the Gospel.

He then told of his own experiences in India, and the work he had done there. He said that he had seen many things that were "dark" and "sinful," but that he had also seen many things that were "bright" and "good."

He closed his lecture with a prayer for the people of India, and a benediction.

There was a good attendance at the lecture, and it was well received.

meeting was led by Professor Spencer and the subject was "The Perils and Possibilities of Vacation Time." His talk was very interesting as well as instructive.

The officers-elect of the Phi Beta Kappa will be installed on the evening of January 15.

The Sigma Delta Phi Sorority gave a reception in their new home to the men of the university. All who were present had a most delightful time. The Sigma Delta Phi now have a home that is the equal of any of the sorority houses of the university.

There are some people in Granville who believe in their ideas that they believe the citizens of the town should be saved first from the perils of the soil before any of their children are sent out of the township. They think that the home people should have the choice of the beef, pork, mutton, butter, eggs, fruit, &c., and if any is left over, let it be shipped.

A GAME OF BLUFF

By MARGARET BARR

Copyright, 1934, by American Press Association.

"Well, sweetheart, what's the trouble?"

"George has lost $1,500 to that horrid
Shapiro. I have just drawn a check for it."

Worseley thought. Mrs. Helen Dana, a widow, who doted on her son, was his fiancée. He knew what sums she had given George to pay gambling debts already. Finally Worseley said to her:

"Give me the check. I will give it to Shapiro."

"What good will that do?"

"I don't know that it will do any good."

She wrote the check and made it payable to Shapiro, as Worseley suggested. He put it in his pocket and left her.

This scene took place in New Orleans near the middle of the last century. The best people of that gay city gambled, fought duels and did a great many other things that are now obsolete, though most of them have survived in some other form, except dueling, which is a thing of the past even in the Crescent City.

Worseley went to the club, where he expected to find Shapiro, and he did. Shapiro was not playing at the time, and Worseley beckoned him to a room where no one else was present and handed him Mrs. Dana's check, saying:

"A man who will win money from a boy and accept the winnings from that boy's mother deserves to be expelled
from respectable society."

Shapiro's brows contracted. He stood with the check in his fingers scowling at Worseley.

"It seems to me, Mr. Worseley, that you have deprived me of the power of declining this check by your words.
Therefore I shall hold it while I am considering what to do in the matter."

"You can't present it till bank hours tomorrow morning; meanwhile I shall consider for you."

"Indeed?"

"Yes. Go into the coffee room and order a glass of wine. I will be with you directly."

"And suppose I decline to do your bidding?"

"It will do no good. My purpose is to make a pretext for what is to take place between us in order that neither young Dana nor his mother will be brought into the affair."

Shapiro, seeing that he was in for a meeting with Worseley, yielded to the plan of concealing the true cause,
went into the coffee room, took a seat at a table and called for wine. In a few minutes Worseley passed him,
pretended to stumble on Shapiro's foot
and, seizing the glass on the table,
threw the contents in Shapiro's face, saying, "I'll teach you to trip me." Then Worseley walked away.

There was nothing for Shapiro to do but send a challenge at once, the affair having been witnessed by half a dozen men. Worseley accepted, chose Derringer pistols, appointed the time at sunrise the next morning, in a wood where the duels were usually fought.

Worseley was not a professional duelist, but was known to be a man of wonderful nerve. Shapiro, who made his living at cards, had recently appeared in New Orleans with letters sufficient to secure his admission among gentlemen and had not yet been detected for what he was. When the two parties were on the ground Shapiro's second asked Worseley's the distance and received the reply, "Over a handkerchief." This he reported to Shapiro, who saw that it meant death
to both principals.

After a conference between Shapiro and his second the latter asked if there was any way by which the matter could be settled in honor to both parties.

"Tell him," said Worseley, "that if he will return the check I gave him this evening with a receipt in full for the debt for which it was intended, I will apologize to him for what I have done on the ground that his tripping
me was unintentional."

Shapiro was disposed to regard the whole affair a bluff by which to regain possession of Mrs. Dana's check and that by standing firm Worseley would withdraw at the last moment. But his second warned him that Worseley did not bear any such reputation. Nevertheless Shapiro, who was anxious to retain the money, concluded to bluff,
and not till the two seconds, each holding a corner of a handkerchief, instructed their principals to advance
with weapons extended till the muzzles
were on a line with what separated them did he throw up the sponge.
Then he accepted Worseley's terms.

The check and a receipt for the amount of its face passed, and Worseley intimated that he would state at the club that he had been mistaken in Shapiro's intention and had apologized to him. But Shapiro said he might spare himself the trouble, since he would leave New Orleans that day and such a statement would be of no use to him.

Worseley took the check and the receipt to Mrs. Dana.

"How did you get it?" she asked.

Worseley told her, and she, smiling,
said:

"Suppose he had preferred to die
rather than yield?"

"I knew he would prefer nothing of the kind."

POULTRY SHOW OPENED TODAY

Many Exhibits Shown by Bird Fanciers at Brennan's Hall, Fourth and West Main Streets.

The annual show of the Licking County Poultry Association will open this evening in Brennan's Hall, over Stephen's store, corner of North Fourth and West Main streets, and from the large number of fine specimens which have already arrived this show promises to be the greatest exhibition of high class poultry ever brought together in Newark, or this section of the state.

Superintendent Anderson of the Poultry association has been busy all day arranging the exhibition cases and putting the hall in order for caring for the large number of birds which will be shown and when the doors are thrown open to the public this evening, everything will be in readiness for visitors, of which there promises to be a great number. In conjunction with the poultry show, the annual exhibition of the Licking County Corn Improvement association will be held.

This in itself will be a great attraction as Licking county has long been known as one of the best corn growing counties in Ohio and for the past two years has carried off the state trophy at the State Corn Shows which have been held in Columbus.

SPECIAL NOTICE.
Our store will not be open evenings until Wednesday evening of this week. Open every evening then for the balance of the week.

WERE DETAINED IN OLD MEXICO AS PRISONERS

Charles "Shorty" Wagner arrived in the city Sunday after an extended trip through the West and Southwest, covering portions of Mexico, being said to leave the latter country on account of the uprising of revolutionists, who Mr. Wagner states are becoming quite active.

At Padernales in the province of Guerrero, Mr. Wagner and two other Americans were detained for three days on suspicion of being implicated in smuggling arms and ammunition into the country. After a great deal of trouble they finally got into communication with the American consul at Mexico City and were later released.
Mr. Wagner and his companions will probably start suit against the foreign government for damages.

BASKETBALL TEAM.

The Newark Y. M. C. A. basket ball team will play the first game with the last Columbus Reds next Wednesday night on the Y. M. C. A. floor. The game will be called at 8 p.m. Eleven players have been out for practice recently for the last six weeks. From the way they are rounding into form it looks like the "Y" will have a sweeter team than last year. All of last year's team are here except Black and Lewis.

The players bring out new living
stoves, Edison's, Brown, Woodward, Rehfeld, Lenox and Lewis, Whitehead, Webster, Boone and Carter.

K. A. Reinhold was elected manager and has a number of others
bonded with some of the best teams in the State. The team will be hard to equal last year's record by not losing a game and trying for the state championship.

NEED OF GREAT CONFIDENCE IN THE PROMISES OF GOD

Light Should Not Be Hidden, but Always Exposed.

Reward Will Be a Position in the Mediatorial Kingdom to Be Set Up in the World Shortly.

Cast not away
therefore your confidence which hath great recompense of reward.—Hebrews 10:35

Our English word confidence is a synonym for faith. It is a very pretty thought that we should not cast away our faith, but hold firmly to it and gain a reward. This thought is expressed elsewhere in the Scriptures, but it is not the thought of our text. Here the word confidence more properly signifies assurance or outspokenness, courageous presentation of a message not always kindly received. The Apostle is urging the followers of Christ to be of good courage, or, in the language of the Savior, that they should not put their "light under a bushel, but on a candlestick," where it would shine out for the blessing of men.

There is a practical side to the Gospel. Everything enjoined upon the followers of Christ and all their trying experiences in life are wisely intended to work out for them character-development of good, firm, fine texture. It is a mistake to think, as some of us have thought in the past, that it is the will of God that we should merely hear of Christ and give a nominal assent to the message of his death as our Redeemer and turn from outward forms of sin—and then, contented with our progress, help others to the same low standards.

The Father Does the Drawing.
Quite to the contrary, the teachings of Jesus and his Apostles ignore the world as a whole and merely seek for a special class with hearing ears and appreciative hearts. The Gospel message set forth in the Bible knows nothing of the ordinary mission work of rescuing drunkards and harlots and the profane. While not refusing publicans and harlots it did not go about seeking them. It waited for them to seek for righteousness and, as the Master said, "No man can come unto me except the Father which sent me draw him"; and whosoever cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out (John 6:37, 44, 55). As a matter of fact, those who came to the Master and those who have been interested in his message ever since, have not, in any large proportion, been the rich, the great, the learned, the noble, according to the course of this world, but chiefly the poor, rich in faith to ward our God.

Take as an illustration St. Paul's course when he went to Athens. We do not find that he started a mission Sunday School and offered the children the prospects of a picnic or a Sunday School treat, in order to gather them for a half hour's talk about nothing. To keep them off the street. Neither did he seek out the drunkards in the slums and establish a slum mission. On the contrary he sought the city of the intelligent classes, the thinking classes, irrespective of their wealth or station. Why? Because he had a message—a message which children could not understand, a message which drunkards were incapacitated from understanding, a message which should appeal, if at all, to the best people of Athens, whether rich or poor.

Have we not had, to a considerable extent, the wrong idea? Are we wiser than the Lord and the Apostles and able to give them pointers as to methods instead of following their example as they were instructed to do? They proclaimed the Second Coming of Messiah and the establishment of his Kingdom. They preached that the very object of his Reign of Righteousness for a thousand years will be the putting down of sin in its every form and the lifting up of poor fallen humanity. They taught that there was danger of attempting to make a proselyte and really doing more harm than good thereby. They taught that the special work to which God's people are now commissioned as ministers or servants of Christ is the proclaiming of the Gospel—"the Good Tidings of the Kingdom"—not the proclaiming of eternal torment nor the attempt to drive the world of mankind from sin through fear. They taught that the work of this present Age is the selection from amongst mankind of the Bride class, to be Messiah's associates in his Kingdom for the blessing of all the world. It is this message of the goodness of God that our text declares should be proclaimed with courage, with boldness, with outspokenness.

A Great Fight of Afflictions.
St. Paul is criticizing some who had for quite a time been Christians and who had been granted large opportunities for growth in grace and knowledge. He says to these, "For the time ye ought to be teachers, but ye need that one teach you again which is the first principles of the doctrine of Christ." They had lost the first principles. They had, gotten entangled with vain philosophies and their spirituality was at a low ebb. Conditions are very similar today. After eighteen centuries of Divine instruction and with the wonderful Bibles now at our command and with help for Bible study, what manner of Christians ought we to be—in faith, in love, in obedience, in courage?

St. Paul points out the necessity for the Lord's people to assemble themselves together for fellowship and for the study of his Word and to provoke one another to love and good works. The necessity for this, he suggests, is that sin on the part of those who have received a knowledge of the Truth and been made partakers of the Holy Spirit is a much more serious matter than the same conduct would have been before they came into the precious relationship of spirit-begotten children of God. He says, "For if we sin after that we have received a knowledge of the Truth, there remaineth no more a sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful looking for of condemnation and fiery indignation which shall devour us as God's adversaries" (verses 26, 27).

Have we grasped the import of the thought? It signifies that those of us who have accepted the Divine terms and entered the family of God with no future opportunity in another life. We must either make our "calling and election sure" under the terms of the call, as accepted, or be rejected as unworthy of life everlasting—as fit for the Second Death—annihilation. He who despised Moses' Law died without mercy. But he who, having come to a clear knowledge of the Truth, shall be found a willing sinner, will not only be cut off from a further opportunity in the present Age, but be everlasting cut off from life, destroyed. "God is able to destroy both soul and body"—the present life and our future hope. These thoughts should make very earnest, very diligent, all who have accepted Christ and been accepted by him.

Nevertheless Be Not Discouraged.

These things were written, not only for the Hebrew Christians of St. Paul's day, but intended by the Holy Spirit for all the household of faith. We should not rock ourselves to sleep, nor give to each other opiates. While the world is not yet on trial for eternal life, the Church is now being tested—for life or death eternal. The thought should sober us. As the Apostle suggests, "Be diligent, be sober," be faithful, following in the footsteps of Jesus.

But St. Paul or, rather, the Holy Spirit through him, took cognizance of the fact that the Lord's people are in a world that is "no friend to grace to help them on to God." The Apostle recognized that we might become discouraged with our own faults and weaknesses. Hence, after earnestly exhorting to faithfulness and energy and after pointing out the dangers of slothfulness and of being over-charged with the cares of this life and the deceptions of riches and thus losing the spirit of Christ, he turns from this threatening attitude and uses encouraging words.

He says "Call to mind the former days in which, following your illumination of the Holy Spirit, you endured a great fight of afflictions." St. Paul's intimation is that at that time, while suffering persecutions, the brethren were really in a better, more alive, spiritual condition than later. The prosperity, privileges, freedom from persecution enjoyed, had made them slothful and less courageous. He would have them and us call to mind the victories won in the past, that we might have courage for the present and the future. How gracious, how helpful, are all the provisions of our God for those who now hear his call and seek to walk in Jesus' steps! To those he guarantees that every experience of life which his providence shall permit shall work for good for blessing, for valuable experience and education along lines of righteousness and character development.

Two Classes of the Faithful.

In time of war not all can go forth as soldiers. Some, unfit for such service, may perform a useful part at home supporting, encouraging, sending supplies to those at the front, etc. And so it is in the army of the Lord: Jesus is the Captain of all those who voluntarily enlist as soldiers of the cross to battle against sin, especially in themselves—fighting a "good fight of faith" and overcoming the spirit of the world which surges all about them, threatening to overwhelm them as New Creatures in Christ.

St. Paul intimates a strong persecution openly manifested by the worldly-spirited, Satan-affected people of God. He says, "Ye endured a great fight of afflictions, partly whilst ye were made a gazing stock both by reproaches and afflictions and partly whilst ye became companions of them that were so used." For ye had compassion of me in my bonds, and took joyfully the spoiling of your goods" (verses 32-34).

St. Paul and others prominent amongst the Lord's followers naturally would receive the brunt of Satan's attacks. It is presumed that the Epistle of which our text is a part was written while St. Paul was a prisoner at Rome. Fellow Jews so far from being sympathetic for a countryman, reproached him as a traitor unorthodox, seeking to tear down the work of God and to ignore the Divine promises belonging to Israel and their sacred traditions. By the Romans, too, he was regarded with suspicion, as one giving allegiance to another King, Jesus, and not therefore disposed to use his Roman citizenship specially for the pride and glory of the Empire. St. Paul declares that this himself and those who espouse the cause of the Lord are despised and rejected by all. He says that we are counted as the dith and offscouring of the earth—that which nobody cares for or values, but which all would like to get rid of, as the darkness always hates the light and seeks to quench it and rogues completely only when all lights are extinguished. Christians far and near, either by expressing sympathy for the Apostle or fellowshipping with him, or by defending him from the unjust and malicious slanders circulated against him thereby exposed them selves to similar reproaches and disesteem opposition from their neighbors, etc.

History tells us of various terrible persecutions of the Christians by the Roman Emperors. It declares, for instance, that to gratify his depraved mind Nero, the Emperor, caused a certain portion of the city of Rome to be burned by incendiaries and that when he found how angry the people were he blamed the entire matter upon the unoffensive Christians—partly, no doubt, because these had no friends either at court or amongst the people. They could be blamed with impunity and the Emperor's own vicious criminality would thus be hidden. On this account hundreds of Christians were publicly and brutally put to death.

"Great Recompense of Reward"

Poor human nature finds it difficult to stand alone with God and with the few who are on his side—the side of righteousness and truth. When, additionally, there comes persecution it tries their hearts, proves their loyalty. This is exactly what the Lord designs. He is now seeking a special class of overcomers to be joint-heirs with his Son on the spirit plane as the Bride of Messiah. Through these he intends shortly to grant to Israel and, through Israel, to all mankind glorious blessings of instruction and restitution. To be qualified to thus serve in the instruction and uplifting of humanity it is necessary that these called ones should be of strong character—copies of their Master, in the spirit of their minds. To these he says, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne" (Rev. 3:21).

We can readily see how some of the more prominent followers of the Lord who suffered martyrdom because of their loyalty to the principles of righteousness and to the name of Jesus would be accounted overcomers and members of the Kingdom class. But sometimes it is difficult for us to discern clearly how the less prominent, less persecuted ones stand with God. St. Paul's argument proves that they stand well—that God counts them in as martyrs, as faithful unto death, if they have the martyr spirit, if they are loyal, courageous for the Truth, even though they never seal their testimony at the stake, even though they never are counted worthy of open, or public opposition or persecution. Here is an encouragement for all and this is exactly what St. Paul would stimulate us to in the words of our text.

We Must Let the Light Shine.

He says, "Cast not away, therefore, your outspokenness, which hath great recompense of reward." The Lord has not promised a great reward to us for merely believing, merely trusting, and in a cowardly manner keeping our light hidden, lest its exposure should bring to us persecution or reproach. He seeks not such. Such will not be counted worthy of a place in the Kingdom which is to bless the world.

St. Paul elsewhere declares, "If we deny him, he will also deny us" (II Timothy 2:12). If we have accepted the Lord as our Counselor, Guide, Captain, Teacher, Exemplar, Bridegroom, he expects of us courage to confess him as such and on all suitable and proper occasions to let our light so shine before men that they may see our good works and glorify our Father which is in heaven" (Matthew 5:16). Our good works are to so accord with the Master's teaching that, however we may be represented by others, all who know us intimately will take knowledge of us that we have been with Jesus and have learned of him. They should also see that our courage, our boldness, our outspokenness, is not a desire to preach ourselves, not vainglory in ourselves, but that, on the contrary, we preach Christ and the glorious message of his Word, which always has brought opposition and persecution from the Adversary and from all who are under his blinding influence.

Every faithful follower of Jesus must be a confessor—must show his colors. We do not mean by this that he must be belligerent and fight a carnal warfare with swords or spears or hands or tongue. On the contrary, like his Master, he must ever be alert to do good. His orders from the Captain are, "Speak evil of no man." What he must speak forth and show forth by his life is the doctrine of Christ—the Truth, the Light in contrast with the prevailing Error and Darkness.

The reward which the Scriptures hold before our eyes of faith is so great that, to the world, it seems foolish to believe in it. It is to consist of a share with our Lord in his glory, honor and immortality, in his Mediatorial Kingdom soon to be established, in his great work as the Mediator of the New Covenant in granting Divine blessings through the merit of the better sacrifices to the people of Israel and eventually through them to all mankind. Not all have a knowledge of this great reward, not all therefore have the encouragement to faithfulness which this knowledge inspires. Not all even have the ears to hear. It is written "The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him and he will show them his Covenant" (Psalm 111:14).

Dr. Cook's Confession

In the January issue of HAMPTON'S MAGAZINE—the magazine that published Commander Peary's Own Story of the Conquest of the North Pole—Dr. Cook frankly admits that he does not know whether he reached the North Pole or not.

Since the sudden and mysterious disappearance of Dr. Frederick A. Cook in November, 1909, and the publication of this series, no word has been received from this man who stood so conspicuously for a brief while before the world, the recipient of unprecedented honors. Why did Dr. Cook disappear? Was not this a tacit admission that he had presented a fraudulent claim to the discovery of the North Pole? Or did he ever possibly believe in himself? Where has he been? What has he done?

In his story—a human document of the most extraordinary interest and importance—Dr. Cook has held up his own naked soul for public examination; has searchingly and mercilessly analyzed the mental processes which preceded his extraordinary actions since his return from that barren world where, he says, "I felt what few men of cities feel—the tragic isolation of the human soul—a thing which, dwelt upon, must mean madness, I think I realized the aching vastness of the world after Creation, before man was made."

On its own merits, we print Dr. Cook's Own Story in the January issue of Answer Filed.

In the case of the village of Granville vs. the Crawford Natural Gas Co., the defendant has filed its answer to the petition of plaintiff. The defendant claims that the ordinance passed by the council of Granville on June 2, 1915, is contrary to and in violation of section 1, article 14, of the amendments to the constitution of the United States, and is therefore null and void and of no effect for the reason that it is a denial to the defendant of the equal protection of the laws in that it attempts to compel the defendant company to furnish gas in a manner and at a price entirely at the option of the consumer without the consent of defendant interests.
